we simply know the fact to exist. As a general rule, those essistion of the apple tree, which grow most rempantly, making annually a large amount of young wood, are late coming into bearing, simply from the fact, that they make wood so rapidly that they fail to make fruit, or blossom buds. That a luxuriance of wood growth retards the formation of fruit bude, is evidenced by the fact that what ever one off the sunniv the fact, that what ever cuts off the supply of sap, such as partially girdling the tree er, (thus reducing wood growth,) will bring the tree, if of sui able age, in'o immediate bearing. The Red Astrachan, and McAfee's, None Such, with many others are illustrations of this doctrine. There is a third-class of apples which require top grafting for another reason, that of pre-Some varie ies throw out roots so near the surface that they become sources of annoyance. One advantage, however, and only one that we know o', is that fine young trees are frequently obtained in this way, true to name. This is an interesting work of two hundred and sixty pages, with numerous engravings, and contains valuable information for those who are married, or contemplate marriage. Still it is a book that ought to be kept under lock and key, and not laid carelessly about the house.

It contains the experience and advice of a physician whose reputation is world-wide, and should be in the private drawer of every naise and female throughout the entire globe. It embraces everything on the subject of the renerative system that is worth knowing, and much that is not published in any other work.
